- The EU is taking aim at privacy coins and self-custody wallets under new anti-money laundering regime.
- The changes, including a ban on crypto mixers, are expected this week.
- DeFi, DAOs, NFT platforms, among others, will need to increase their due diligence on users.

Restricting self-custody wallet payments. Increasing the tracking of crypto transfers. Banning privacy coins.

These are three critical changes Europe Union lawmakers are expected to make this week as they complete a three-year-process of updating the bloc's rules on money laundering and terrorist organisation funding in the financial sector.

EU는 자기수탁 지갑을 금지하는
조치를 취하기 시작

By 2025:

1. Regulations which expand the ECB's authorities to be able to adjust any digital currency's ESG rating are expected to be finalized.
2. The European Commission (EC) will prepare its report, in consultation with ECB and ESMA. Later, the final report will be presented to the European Parliament and the Council.

The EC report shall contain: "a particular focus on the environmental and climate-related impact of [crypto assets], as well as an assessment of policy options and where necessary any additional measures that might be warranted to mitigate the adverse impacts on the climate..."

The European Commission's current position on Bitcoin mining is: an environmentally harmful, energy wasting and obsolete consensus mechanism. So these other measures are likely to include

- a carbon tax on mining based on their own methodologies and sustainability standards on the environmental impact of crypto-assets and their consensus mechanisms
- the ability for member states to shut off mining for "energy security" reasons at any time
- the formal labelling of bitcoin mining as "harmful to the environment" and
- the empowerment of ECB to devise ESG rules around institutional investment into bitcoin which economically disincentive or even prohibited investment into Bitcoin or Bitcoin-adjacent products.

In 2025:

The EC's Action Plan on digitalizing the EU's energy system scheme rolls out. Under the proposed plan, member states will be able to demand miners lower, or even stop, the electricity consumption of crypto-asset miners.

This sounds like demand response but it's not defined by grid owners but by bureaucrats and there's no demand response revenue as there would be for any other consumer of energy. Bitcoin miners will be simultaneously used to stabilise grids and vilified for making grids and energy supply unstable.

Other measures proposed during 2024 are enacted including

- Bitcoin mining carbon tax,
- labelling of Bitcoin as "harmful to the environment" and
- assignment of an ESG-rating to Bitcoin that discourages investment.

ESMA and ECB pushes EU trading partners to take similar action.

Executive Summary: Blockchain Basics Act

Summary of Legislation

Foundational Policy for State Leadership

The rights of individuals to hold and use digital assets like cryptocurrency are under attack by federal agencies. The Blockchain Basics Act ensures Americans digital financial freedom.

The Legislation protects the right of individuals to hold and transact with private digital currency creating an important bulwark against a government mandated Central Bank Digital Currency.

The Act protects the infrastructure that enables Bitcoin to function which creates jobs in rural America. It also protects technologies that allow other cryptocurrencies to function so that America is a leader in innovation and freedom.

Protects Monetary Freedom

Americans should have the right to save and transact in digital assets the same way they can with cash. This would provide a safeguard against a Central Bank Digital Currency where the government could monitor or even stop financial transactions.

The legislation would ensure the right to hold and transact with privately issued digital currency.

Right to Save & Transact

Protects Bitcoin Infrastructure

America has become a leader in Bitcoin (mining) infrastructure after China banned the practice due to their lack of control.

Bitcoin miners could legally operate in areas zoned for industrial use as long as they meet the general regulations for those areas.

Defend Digital Asset Infrastructure

Prevents Outdated Regulations from Stifling Innovation

The federal government has attacked blockchain technology by enforcing regulations written decades ago which were not intended with blockchain in mind.

The Blockchain Basics Act exempts notable blockchain activities from traditional financial regulations which they cannot possibly comply with while keeping consumer safety in mind. This act does not protect fraud.

Encourage the Growth of Innovation

The Internet doomed to fail over unfulfilled promises

By DENNIS F. GALLETTA

When Internet use crashes - as it soon will - we will not have seen the end of the world. But the great disappointment is information technology. This sort of thing has happened before. It is about to happen again. Let's review our past and reflect on information technology. Then take a realistic look at our relationship with the Internet and what we can do about it.

Great hopes - followed by great letdowns - occur over and over again. In the 1960s, the first business computers were called as "word" data systems, but the big disappointment came when they did not deliver the promised results.

In the 1970s, artificial intelligence software was supposed to put a wealth of information at everyone's fingertips. But the methods of organizing data were too cumbersome at the time.

In the 1980s, case studies were supposed to be the new standard of the time.

From paper than from a screen. People on the Web also become lost in their mouse clicks, forgetting how they arrived at the current page, disconnected from their original purpose. Lack of consistency in page design is the result.

The consequences are predictable.

When you find a website interesting, you can "bookmark" the location for future access. But often accounts are closed, files are moved and connections are disconnected, leaving you with a cryptic error message.

It is very difficult to filter the vast amount of information on the Internet.

Much of it is useless, like the numerous pages full of other complaints or blind praise on the topic of your search. One source groups are so large that it's hard to find through a search engine before finding a true expert on, say, "trend of audio" and how to get your hands on it.

Anonymous crypto wallets now illegal in the EU

finbold.com • 17 h

In a recent regulatory development, cryptocurrency payments of any size using unidentified self-custody crypto wallets are now illegal in the European Union (EU). This decision is part of a set of new anti-money laundering laws (AML) in the continent.

The majority of the EU Parliament's lead commission approved the prohibition on March 19, according to Patrick Breyer's post.

Notably, Dr. Breyer is a member of the European Parliament for the Deutsch Piraten Partei and one of the two leaders who opposed this approval. Gunnar Beck was the other Parliament member who voted against it, representing the Alternative for Germany (AfD) party.
